Masood Anjom is an intellectual property and patent trial lawyer who has helped clients navigate their most important and complicated cases for over a decade.

He is an award-winning electrical engineer with extensive experience in patent litigation and the preparation and prosecution of patents. Mr. Anjom is “quick to get to grips with the technology at issue and is brilliant at helping customers to achieve their goals,” according to the publishers of the IAM Patent 1000 – The World’s Leading Patent Professionals.

He has represented plaintiffs and defendants in patent infringement suits in federal courts across the country, as well as matters before the International Trade Commission and the USPTO, where he has served as lead counsel in multiple post-grant proceedings.

Mr. Anjom has prosecuted numerous patent applications in the U.S. and internationally across various technologies, including oil field applications (e.g., drilling technology, logging technology, and other aspects relating to exploration and production of oil and gas) and computer hardware and software.

He also advises clients on IP-related agreements, IP clearance, and IP due diligence associated with corporate mergers and acquisitions. Like his fellow partners at Alavi Anaipakos, Mr. Anjom has extensive experience in cross-border patent campaigns in countries such as Germany, Brazil, and China.

While obtaining his electrical engineering degree, Mr. Anjom worked in the nanotechnology lab at the University of Houston’s Cullen College of Engineering.

Mr. Anjom previously worked with the AmLaw 100 firm Baker Botts and the boutique intellectual property firm AZA. He has led multiple legal teams with an active trial docket representing both plaintiffs and defendants, including prior work as a volunteer trial prosecutor for the City of Houston. Fluent in English and Farsi, he is also proficient in Urdu/Hindi and Arabic.
